

Dear Colleague,

Refugee Survey Quarterly is a peer-reviewed, academic journal that focuses on the challenges of forced migration from multidisciplinary and policy-oriented perspectives. The RSQ is pleased to announce some important changes which will be introduced in time for the publication of the first issue of Volume 30 (2011). Published four times a year, the RSQ will continue to publish one thematic special issue each year, but the other three issues will now be open issues, publishing articles across a range of subjects and viewpoints.

Along with the entire editorial board, I invite you to submit your articles, which can be from a broad range of disciplines, including international relations, politics, law, history, geography, sociology, anthropology, economics, development studies, and migration studies. Submitted articles can cover various areas from a policy and/or multidisciplinary perspective, including governance of migration, sociology of forced migration, the changing pattern and the historical evolution of the refugee regime, or contemporary challenges of international protection, such as those raised by mixed migration, climate change, or post-conflict peacebuilding. All papers will be submitted to a rigorous blind peer review process in order to ensure the high quality of the RSQ.
