THE FUTURE OF HEALTH IN AFRICA

Tuesday, 23 January, 18:30-20:00
Maison de la paix, Auditorium Ivan Pictet

Sub-Saharan African countries have sustained unprecedented transformation and change in the last decade, including constant economic growth, a growing middle class, increased political stability, and a skilled workforce. Recognition must be given to these advances, even though challenges remain: Africa's population is rapidly growing, and this will increase the pressure on health systems.

This event discusses the achievements and challenges across the continent, including the most promising approaches for improving healthcare systems, ensuring health security and the realisation of Universal Health Coverage (UHC).
