

Georgetown Law's Institute of International Economic Law &

Graduate Institute's Centre for Trade and Economic Integration

G2 Annual Conference on WTO and Global Economic Regulation

7th & 8th June 2019

Programme

The Graduate Institute, Geneva Maison de la Paix Chemin Eugène-Rigot 2B, 1202 Genève

and

World Trade Organization Centre William Rappard Rue de Lausanne 154, 1202 Genève

SUPPORTERS AND SPONSORS

This conference benefits from academic input and guidance from the Society of International Economic Law

This conference is generously sponsored by:

Pre-conference activities at the Graduate Institute

Wednesday, 5th and Thursday, 6th June 2019

Closed meetings, various rooms

John H. Jackson (formerly ELSA) Moot Court Competition on WTO Law	PLEADINGS HELD AT
<ul> <li>Final Oral Round, for 22 teams from around the world</li> </ul>	VARIOUS TIMES

Thursday, 6th June 2019

Closed meetings, various rooms

TradeLab General Assembly	15:00 - 17:00
<ul> <li>Closed meeting for TradeLab members, representatives and invited guests (Room S6)</li> </ul>
TradeLab training session for Pilot Clinics	17:45 – 19:00
Closed meeting for TradeLab Pilot Clinics, together with representatives of Experienced Clinics (Room S4)
JIEL Board Meeting	18:00 - 19:00
Closed meeting for members of the JIEL Board (Room S6)

Friday, 7th June 2019

Public meeting, Auditorium Ivan Pictet B

TradeLab Showcase  • A presentation of recent TradeLab projects	10:00 - 11:30
All welcome

Sponsors of this conference include:

Conference Programme

Friday, 7th June 2019 (Held at the Graduate Institute, Maison de la Paix - Auditorium Ivan Pictet A)

Registration (Foyer of Petal 2)	10:00 onwards
SANDWICH LUNCH AVAILABLE, SERVED IN THE FOYER OF PETAL 2	11:30 – 12:15
<ul> <li>Welcome and Opening Remarks</li> <li>Joost PAUWELYN, Professor of International Law, Graduate Institute, Co-Director CTEI and Murase Visiting Professor of Law, Georgetown Law</li> <li>Christopher BRUMMER, Professor of Law and Faculty Director, IIEL, Georgetown Law</li> </ul>	12:15 – 12:30
Past and Future Globalization and What It May Mean for the World Trading System  • Richard BALDWIN, Professor of International Economics, Graduate Institute, Co-Director CTEI	12:30 – 13.30
Session 1. PANEL: Geopolitics & National Security in Global Economic Regulation  This panel will discuss national security in the light of the WTO panel report on Russia – Measures Concerning Traffic in Transit (DS512, filed by Ukraine), which was circulated and adopted by the DSB (without appeal) in April 2019. National security and broader geopolitical questions play an increasing role also in US-China relations (think of the Huawei example), a revival of export controls and sanctions (e.g. US primary and secondary sanctions against Iran and Russia), and the regulation of foreign investment, including in the screening of FDI inflows (with recent changes in the US CFIUS law, and a brand new EU investment screening framework).  Moderator: Kathleen CLAUSSEN, University of Miami  Henrique CHOER MORAES, Mission of Brazil to the EU, Brussels & Centre for Global Governance Studies, KU Leuven  Nicolas LAMP, Queen's University, Canada  Viktoriia LAPA, PhD candidate, Bocconi University, Italy  Ted POSNER, Weil, Gotshal & Manges and Georgetown Law  Burak RENDE, Deputy Permanent Representative of Turkey	13:30 – 15:15
Cindy WHANG, Fu Jen Catholic University, Taipei  Coffee Break	15:15 – 15:45

 $Sponsors\ of\ this\ conference\ include:$

Friday, 7th June 2019 (Cont)

Session 2. PANEL: Trade Remedies When Markets Are "Distorted": Non-Market Economy Status and Alternative Approaches

15:45 - 17:00

This panel will assess the question of non-market economy status in light of the pending WTO panel on EU – Measures Related to Price-Comparison Methodologies (DS516, filed by China), which issued its confidential interim report in April. Market "distortions" and how to deal with them when investigating dumping and subsidization have been a central theme also in other WTO disputes, recent reforms or reform proposals of trade defence instruments in the EU and the US as well as in various domestic investigations.

Moderator: Stacy ETTINGER, K&L Gates & Georgetown Law

- Timothy BRIGHTBILL, Wiley Rein & Georgetown Law
- Philippe DE BAERE, Van Bael & Bellis, Brussels
- Yujin McNAMARA, Akin Gump, Washington DC
- James NEDUMPARA, Indian Institute of Foreign Trade, New Delhi, India
- Sherzod SHADIKHODJAEV, KDI School of Public Policy and Management, Sejong City, Korea

TEA BREAK 17:00 – 17:30

Session 3. PANEL: New Trends in Global Economic Regulation: In Search of Rule-Hegemony? From The New Financial and Digital Extraterritoriality to Regulatory Supervision and Recognition Agreements

17:30 - 19:15

As the WTO is losing centrality, global trade and economic regulation do not stand still. Until recently, the choice or contrast presented was often between "multilateralism" and "regionalism", or between the WTO and preferential trade agreements. Today, however, many attempts at global regulation are better classified as either "unilateral" (from US trade, national security and financial sanctions on China, Russia and Iran, to EU competition law enforcement, the EU's General Data Protection Regulation and attempts to tax the digital economy) or "bilateral" (think of the US-EU Privacy Shield or contractual arrangements under China's Belt and Road Initiative). Are we moving away from traditional international organizations and treaties based on (multilateral) rules and (hard law) dispute settlement, to looser economic cooperation and connections based on pragmatism, broad supervisory discretion and reciprocal, economic needs? What are some of the new initiatives and approaches out there? To what extent are they an improvement or a step back?

Moderator: Naboth VAN DEN BROEK, Partner, Wilmer Hale, Washington DC

- Christopher BRUMMER, Georgetown Law
- Martina LODRANT, European Commission, DG Trade
- Shin-Yi PENG, National Tsing Hua University
- Pierre-Hugues VERDIER, University of Virginia
- Heng WANG, University of New South Wales

CONFERENCE DINNER 19:30 ONWARDS

Sponsors of this conference include:

Saturday, 8th June 2019 (Held at the WTO, Centre William Rappard, Room W)

Victor DO PRADO, Director of the Council and Trade Negotiations Committee     Division. Responsible for the Ministerial Conference, the General Council and the     Dispute Settlement Body  Session 4. ROUNDTABLE: Update and Assessment of Negotiations, Explorations and Reform     Discussions in the WTO  This panel will present a critical overview of negotiations, explorations and reform discussions ongoing in the WTO, ranging from fisheries subsidies and e-commerce to investment facilitation, transparency and dispute settlement.  Moderator: Gabrielle MARCEAU, University of Geneva & WTO Secretariat  Kichang CHUNG, Senior Foreign Attorney, Lee & Ko, Seoul, Korea  Amb. 1s. DEEPAK, Permanent Representative of Canada  Amb. J.S. DEEPAK, Permanent Representative of India  Merit JANOW, School of International and Public Affairs, Columbia University  Patrick LOW, University of Hong Kong  Amb. Bavid WALKER, Permanent Representative of New Zealand  Danielle YEOW, Attorney-General's Chambers Singapore  Correct Break  Session S. ROUNDTABLE on "Trade-Wars": Causes, Consequences & How To Respond?  This roundtable will build on a forthcoming special issue of the Journal of International Economic Law that seeks to take stock of the current trade wars, provide an explanation of their causes and conditions of possibility, and offer reflections on the best responses to them, both in the short term and looking further ahead. Starting from the premise that the structure of the international economic order may be at a point of inflection, it aims both to set this moment in context; and to offer ideas for what international economic law could and should look like looking ahead. Topics for discussion will include: How does the current set of trade wars compare to similar periods in history? Has the political economy of protectionism and liberalisation changed? If the friction today relates to different models of economic and political organization (e.g., between the US and China), how has the global economic order dealt with institu
Discussions in the WTO  This panel will present a critical overview of negotiations, explorations and reform discussions ongoing in the WTO, ranging from fisheries subsidies and e-commerce to investment facilitation, transparency and dispute settlement.  Moderator: Gabrielle MARCEAU, University of Geneva & WTO Secretariat  Kichang CHUNG, Senior Foreign Attorney, Lee & Ko, Seoul, Korea  Amb. Stephen DE BOER, Permanent Representative of Canada  Amb. J.S. DEEPAK, Permanent Representative of India  Merit JANOW, School of International and Public Affairs, Columbia University  Patrick LOW, University of Hong Kong  Amb. Guillermo VALLES, Punta del Este Group (PEG), Uruguay  Amb. David WALKER, Permanent Representative of New Zealand  Danielle YEOW, Attorney-General's Chambers Singapore  Coffee Break  11:00–11:30  Session 5. ROUNDTABLE on "Trade-Wars": Causes, Consequences & How To Respond?  This roundtable will build on a forthcoming special issue of the Journal of International Economic Low that seeks to take stock of the current trade wars, provide an explanation of their causes and conditions of possibility, and offer reflections on the best responses to them, both in the short term and looking further ahead. Starting from the premise that the structure of the international economic order may be at a point of inflection, it aims both to set this moment in context; and to offer ideas for what international economic law could and should look like looking ahead. Topics for discussion will include: How does the current set of trade wars compare to similar periods in history? Has the political economy of protectionism and liberalisation changed? If the friction today relates to different models of economic and political organization (e.g., between the US and China), how has the global economic order dealt with institutional diversity of this kind before? Trade wars are now bound up with larger geopolitical struggles involving economic, technological and national security dimensions. How has this changed the politics and	<ul> <li>Victor DO PRADO, Director of the Council and Trade Negotiations Committee</li> <li>Division. Responsible for the Ministerial Conference, the General Council and the</li> </ul>	09:00 – 09:05
ongoing in the WTO, ranging from fisheries subsidies and e-commerce to investment facilitation, transparency and dispute settlement.  Moderator: Gabrielle MARCEAU, University of Geneva & WTO Secretariat  Kichang CHUNG, Senior Foreign Attorney, Lee & Ko, Seoul, Korea Amb. Stephen DE BOER, Permanent Representative of Canada Merit JANOW, School of International and Public Affairs, Columbia University Patrick LOW, University of Hong Kong Amb. Guillermo VALLES, Punta del Este Group (PEG), Uruguay Amb. David WALKER, Permanent Representative of New Zealand Danielle YEOW, Attorney-General's Chambers Singapore  Coffee Break  11:00–11:30  Session 5. ROUNDTABLE on "Trade-Wars": Causes, Consequences & How To Respond? This roundtable will build on a forthcoming special issue of the Journal of International Economic Law that seeks to take stock of the current trade wars, provide an explanation of their causes and conditions of possibility, and offer reflections on the best responses to them, both in the short term and looking further ahead. Starting from the premise that the structure of the international economic order may be at a point of inflection, it aims both to set this moment in context; and to offer ideas for what international economic law could and should look like looking ahead. Topics for discussion will include: How does the current set of trade wars compare to similar periods in history? Has the political economy of protectionism and liberalisation changed? If the friction today relates to different models of economic and political organization (e.g. between the US and China), how has the global economic order dealt with institutional diversity of this kind before? Trade wars are now bound up with larger geopolitical struggles involving economic, technological and national security dimensions. How has this changed the politics and dynamics of the current trade wars? How will it affect their potential resolution? Contributors to the Special Issue, and others, will be invited to present their work. Practitioners		09:05 – 11:00
Kichang CHUNG, Senior Foreign Attorney, Lee & Ko, Seoul, Korea     Amb. Stephen DE BOER, Permanent Representative of Canada     Amb. J.S. DEEPAK, Permanent Representative of India     Merit JANOW, School of International and Public Affairs, Columbia University     Patrick LOW, University of Hong Kong     Amb. Guillermo VALLES, Punta del Este Group (PEG), Uruguay     Amb. David WALKER, Permanent Representative of New Zealand     Danielle YEOW, Attorney-General's Chambers Singapore  COFFEE BREAK  11:00–11:30  Session S. ROUNDTABLE on "Trade-Wars": Causes, Consequences & How To Respond?  This roundtable will build on a forthcoming special issue of the Journal of International Economic Law that seeks to take stock of the current trade wars, provide an explanation of their causes and conditions of possibility, and offer reflections on the best responses to them, both in the short term and looking further ahead. Starting from the premise that the structure of the international economic order may be at a point of inflection, it aims both to set this moment in context; and to offer ideas for what international economic law could and should look like looking ahead. Topics for discussion will include: How does the current set of trade wars compare to similar periods in history? Has the political economy of protectionism and liberalisation changed? If the friction today relates to different models of economic and political organization (e.g. between the US and China), how has the global economic order dealt with institutional diversity of this kind before? Trade wars are now bound up with larger geopolitical struggles involving economic, technological and national security dimensions. How has this changed the politics and dynamics of the current trade wars? How will it affect their potential resolution? Contributors to the Special Issue, and others, will be invited to present their work. Practitioners will join the Roundtable to provide context and comments.  Moderator: Jennifer HILLMAN, Georgetown Law  Simon EVENETT	ongoing in the WTO, ranging from fisheries subsidies and e-commerce to investment
Amb. J.S. DEEPAK, Permanent Representative of Canada Amb. J.S. DEEPAK, Permanent Representative of India Merit JANOW, School of International and Public Affairs, Columbia University Patrick LOW, University of Hong Kong Amb. Guillermo VALLES, Punta del Este Group (PEG), Uruguay Amb. David WALKER, Permanent Representative of New Zealand Danielle YEOW, Attorney-General's Chambers Singapore  COFFEE BREAK  11:00–11:30  Session 5. ROUNDTABLE on "Trade-Wars": Causes, Consequences & How To Respond?  This roundtable will build on a forthcoming special issue of the Journal of International Economic Low that seeks to take stock of the current trade wars, provide an explanation of their causes and conditions of possibility, and offer reflections on the best responses to them, both in the short term and looking further ahead. Starting from the premise that the structure of the international economic order may be at a point of inflection, it aims both to set this moment in context; and to offer ideas for what international economic law could and should look like looking ahead. Topics for discussion will include: How does the current set of trade wars compare to similar periods in history? Has the political economy of protectionism and liberalisation changed? If the friction today relates to different models of economic and political organization (e.g. between the US and China), how has the global economic order dealt with institutional diversity of this kind before? Trade wars are now bound up with larger geopolitical struggles involving economic, technological and national security dimensions. How has this changed the politics and dynamics of the current trade wars? How will it affect their potential resolution? Contributors to the Special Issue, and others, will be invited to present their work. Practitioners will join the Roundtable to provide context and comments.  Moderator: Jennifer HILLMAN, Georgetown Law  Simon EVENETT, University of St. Gallen Andrew LANG, University of Edinburgh Julia QIN, Wayne State University A	Moderator: Gabrielle MARCEAU, University of Geneva & WTO Secretariat
Session 5. ROUNDTABLE on "Trade-Wars": Causes, Consequences & How To Respond?  This roundtable will build on a forthcoming special issue of the Journal of International Economic Law that seeks to take stock of the current trade wars, provide an explanation of their causes and conditions of possibility, and offer reflections on the best responses to them, both in the short term and looking further ahead. Starting from the premise that the structure of the international economic order may be at a point of inflection, it aims both to set this moment in context; and to offer ideas for what international economic law could and should look like looking ahead. Topics for discussion will include: How does the current set of trade wars compare to similar periods in history? Has the political economy of protectionism and liberalisation changed? If the friction today relates to different models of economic and political organization (e.g. between the US and China), how has the global economic order dealt with institutional diversity of this kind before? Trade wars are now bound up with larger geopolitical struggles involving economic, technological and national security dimensions. How has this changed the politics and dynamics of the current trade wars? How will it affect their potential resolution? Contributors to the Special Issue, and others, will be invited to present their work. Practitioners will join the Roundtable to provide context and comments.  Moderator: Jennifer HILLMAN, Georgetown Law  Simon EVENETT, University of St. Gallen Andrew LANG, University of Edinburgh Julia QIN, Wayne State University Anne VAN AAKEN, University of Hamburg	<ul> <li>Amb. Stephen DE BOER, Permanent Representative of Canada</li> <li>Amb. J.S. DEEPAK, Permanent Representative of India</li> <li>Merit JANOW, School of International and Public Affairs, Columbia University</li> <li>Patrick LOW, University of Hong Kong</li> <li>Amb. Guillermo VALLES, Punta del Este Group (PEG), Uruguay</li> <li>Amb. David WALKER, Permanent Representative of New Zealand</li> </ul>
This roundtable will build on a forthcoming special issue of the Journal of International Economic Law that seeks to take stock of the current trade wars, provide an explanation of their causes and conditions of possibility, and offer reflections on the best responses to them, both in the short term and looking further ahead. Starting from the premise that the structure of the international economic order may be at a point of inflection, it aims both to set this moment in context; and to offer ideas for what international economic law could and should look like looking ahead. Topics for discussion will include: How does the current set of trade wars compare to similar periods in history? Has the political economy of protectionism and liberalisation changed? If the friction today relates to different models of economic and political organization (e.g. between the US and China), how has the global economic order dealt with institutional diversity of this kind before? Trade wars are now bound up with larger geopolitical struggles involving economic, technological and national security dimensions. How has this changed the politics and dynamics of the current trade wars? How will it affect their potential resolution? Contributors to the Special Issue , and others, will be invited to present their work. Practitioners will join the Roundtable to provide context and comments.  Moderator: Jennifer HILLMAN, Georgetown Law  Simon EVENETT, University of St. Gallen Andrew LANG, University of Edinburgh Julia QIN, Wayne State University Anne VAN AAKEN, University of Hamburg	COFFEE BREAK	11:00 – 11:30 that seeks to take stock of the current trade wars, provide an explanation of their causes and conditions of possibility, and offer reflections on the best responses to them, both in the short term and looking further ahead. Starting from the premise that the structure of the international economic order may be at a point of inflection, it aims both to set this moment in context; and to offer ideas for what international economic law could and should look like looking ahead. Topics for discussion will include: How does the current set of trade wars compare to similar periods in history? Has the political economy of protectionism and liberalisation changed? If the friction today relates to different models of economic and political organization (e.g. between the US and China), how has the global economic order dealt with institutional diversity of this kind before? Trade wars are now bound up with larger geopolitical struggles involving economic, technological and national security dimensions. How has this changed the politics and dynamics of the current trade wars? How will it affect their potential resolution? Contributors to the Special Issue , and others, will be invited to present their work. Practitioners will join the Roundtable to provide context and comments.  Moderator: Jennifer HILLMAN, Georgetown Law  Simon EVENETT, University of St. Gallen Andrew LANG, University of Edinburgh Julia QIN, Wayne State University Anne VAN AAKEN, University of Hamburg	Session 5. ROUNDTABLE on "Trade-Wars": Causes, Consequences & How To Respond?	11:30 – 13:15
<ul> <li>Simon EVENETT, University of St. Gallen</li> <li>Andrew LANG, University of Edinburgh</li> <li>Julia QIN, Wayne State University</li> <li>Anne VAN AAKEN, University of Hamburg</li> </ul>	that seeks to take stock of the current trade wars, provide an explanation of their causes and conditions of possibility, and offer reflections on the best responses to them, both in the short term and looking further ahead. Starting from the premise that the structure of the international economic order may be at a point of inflection, it aims both to set this moment in context; and to offer ideas for what international economic law could and should look like looking ahead. Topics for discussion will include: How does the current set of trade wars compare to similar periods in history? Has the political economy of protectionism and liberalisation changed? If the friction today relates to different models of economic and political organization (e.g. between the US and China), how has the global economic order dealt with institutional diversity of this kind before? Trade wars are now bound up with larger geopolitical struggles involving economic, technological and national security dimensions. How has this changed the politics and dynamics of the current trade wars? How will it affect their potential resolution? Contributors to the Special Issue , and others, will be invited to present their work.
<ul> <li>Andrew LANG, University of Edinburgh</li> <li>Julia QIN, Wayne State University</li> <li>Anne VAN AAKEN, University of Hamburg</li> </ul>	Moderator: Jennifer HILLMAN, Georgetown Law
	<ul> <li>Andrew LANG, University of Edinburgh</li> <li>Julia QIN, Wayne State University</li> <li>Anne VAN AAKEN, University of Hamburg</li> </ul>

LUNCH

Final of the John H. Jackson (formerly ELSA) Moot Court Competition on WTO Law at 14:00

Sponsors of this conference include:

13:15 - 14:00

The 2019 Conference Committee

The Conference Committee is comprised of people from the two host institutions plus a number of individuals appointed by SIEL to provide academic guidance for the conference.

Conference Chairs

Christopher BRUMMER, Professor of Law and Faculty Director, IIEL, Georgetown Law; Editor-in-Chief, Journal of International Economic Law

Joost PAUWELYN, Professor of International Law, Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies, Geneva, and Visiting Professor of Law, Georgetown Law; Editor-in-Chief, Journal of International Economic Law

Academic Committee

Jan BOHANES, Senior Counsel, Advisory Centre on WTO Law; and Visiting Lecturer at the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies, Geneva

Jennifer HILLMAN, Professor from Practice, Georgetown University Law Center

Gabrielle MARCEAU, Associate Professor, Faculty of Law, University of Geneva; and Senior Counsellor, Legal Affairs Division, WTO

Shin-Yi PENG, Professor of Law, National Tsing Hua University; Executive Vice-President of SIEL

Peter L.H. VAN DEN BOSSCHE, Director of Studies, World Trade Institute, University of Bern; Professor of International Economic Law, Faculty of Law, University of Bern; President, Society of International Economic Law

Markus WAGNER, Associate Professor, University of Wollongong, Australia; Executive Vice-President of SIEL

Organising Committee

Dr Theresa CARPENTER, Executive Director, Centre for Trade and Economic Integration, Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies

Maria Florencia SARMIENTO, PhD Candidate in International Law, Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies

Christine WASHINGTON, Director, Programs & External Affairs, IIEL, Georgetown Law

Angelica ZANNINELLI, Events Coordinator, Centre for Trade and Economic Integration, Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies

This conference is generously sponsored by:

