HIGHLIGHTS 2019

Philippe Burrin reçoit le prix 2019 de la Fondation pour Genève

Le lundi 2 décembre 2019 au Victoria Hall, la Fondation pour Genève a remis son prestigieux prix annuel à Philippe Burrin, directeur de l'Institut. Spécialiste du fascisme et du nazisme, Philippe Burrin a été professeur d'histoire internationale à l'Institut avant de prendre, en 2004, les rênes de l'Institut.

Cette distinction a récompensé son engagement exceptionnel en faveur de la Genève internationale dans le domaine académique. Après l'ouverture de la cérémonie par Ivan Pictet, président de la Fondation pour Genève, le public venu nombreux a pu écouter la conférence de Philippe Burrin sur le thème « Genève ville-monde ». Cette conférence a été précédée d'une laudatio par Roger de Weck, journaliste et ancien président du Conseil de fondation de l'Institut, puis d'un message des autorités fédérales et genevoises par Sandrine Salerno, maire de Genève.

Marie Laure Salles, nouvelle directrice de l'Institut dès septembre 2020

Doyenne de l'École du management et de l'innovation à Sciences Po, Paris, école qu'elle a contribué à fonder, M<sup>me</sup> Marie Laure Salles a été auparavant doyenne de la faculté, doyenne du programme de doctorat et responsable du Centre de recherche sur le capitalisme, la globalisation et la gouvernance de l'École supérieure des sciences économiques et commerciales (ESSEC Business School) à Paris, tout en occupant un poste de professeure. M<sup>me</sup> Salles possède un doctorat en sociologie de l'Université Harvard. Elle connaît déjà bien l'Institut, où elle a passé un an en tant que professeure invitée et chercheure invitée auprès du Centre sur la gouvernance globale.

S'appuyant sur l'histoire et le développement récent de l'Institut ainsi que sur les valeurs d'excellence, d'indépendance, de responsabilité, de solidarité et de diversité portées par celui-ci,

M<sup>me</sup> Salles aura pour premier objectif de continuer à le faire évoluer vers une institution académique et de recherche de réputation mondiale visant à attirer les meilleurs étudiants et chercheurs. Elle aura également pour tâche de préparer l'Institut à faire face aux défis d'un monde en pleine transformation.

« Je remercie le Conseil de fondation de la confiance qu'il exprime en confirmant ma nomination comme directrice de l'Institut à compter du 1<sup>er</sup> septembre 2020. J'ai un respect profond pour tout ce que représente l'Institut et je suis donc très honorée de cette nomination. Je me réjouis de travailler en étroite collaboration avec la faculté, l'ensemble de l'équipe administrative, l'équipe de direction et le Conseil. »

Villa Barton.

Rénovation de la Villa Barton

Le domaine Barton, qui comprend la villa du même nom et les cinq pavillons qui l'entourent, va faire l'objet au cours des deux prochaines années d'une rénovation complète. De 1938 à 2013, date de l'emménagement dans la Maison de la paix, la villa Barton a été le siège de l'Institut et le lieu où de nombreuses cohortes d'étudiants ont été formées dans un cadre mémorable. Elle accueille aujourd'hui notre formation continue, dont les besoins sont mal servis par l'état vieilli des locaux et une structuration peu fonctionnelle des espaces.

Les travaux seront menés par l'Institut, qui a conclu un contrat de droit de superficie avec la Confédération helvétique, propriétaire des lieux. Par ce contrat, l'Institut a acquis les immeubles du domaine qu'il rénovera avec le généreux soutien d'une fondation privée genevoise. Le volume intérieur de la villa sera restructuré en respectant l'enveloppe extérieure, l'objectif étant de créer des espaces modulaires se prêtant aussi bien à l'enseignement qu'à des travaux de groupe. Dans les pavillons, l'auditorium Jacques-Freymond, la cafétéria et les logements seront modernisés et dotés d'une meilleure isolation.

L'opération permettra de réhabiliter un patrimoine historique et de l'élever au niveau de qualité qu'il mérite. Elle offrira aux activités de l'Institut, en particulier de la formation continue, des espaces fonctionnels et attrayants. Enfin, elle marquera l'achèvement du Campus de la paix.

New Partnerships with International and Private Actors

The Graduate Institute further strengthened the network of its strategic relationships in 2019 by signing three partnerships with key actors in International Geneva: PricewaterhouseCoopers in January, the International Union for Conservation of Nature (IUCN) in March and the Global Fund to Fight Aids, Tuberculosis and Malaria in October.

These agreements will enable the three institutions and the Graduate Institute to enhance and widen their cooperation in the areas of research, internship and career opportunities, joint outreach projects and executive education training programmes. The agreements also include the organisation of public events on topics of common interests, or the participation in Capstone Projects, where students in the Interdisciplinary Master programmes can engage in research projects with partner institutions at the cutting-edge of global challenges.

In Memoriam

ANNEMARIE HUBER-HOTZ

Présidente de la Croix-Rouge suisse et vice-présidente de la Fédération de la Croix-Rouge et du Croissant-Rouge depuis 2011, elle a été la première femme à être élue chancelière de la Confédération (2000-2007), après avoir occupé le poste de secrétaire générale de l'Assemblée fédérale.

M<sup>me</sup> Huber-Hotz a rejoint le Conseil de fondation de l'Institut en 2013. Personnalité chaleureuse et bienveillante, constamment prête à apporter ses conseils et son soutien, elle a notamment contribué à renforcer la présence de l'Institut sur la scène nationale. En 2018, elle décide de se retirer pour laisser la place à de nouveaux membres et se consacrer pleinement au Mouvement international de la Croix-Rouge et du Croissant-Rouge.

L'Institut regrette la disparition à la fois d'une alumna très attachée à son alma mater et d'un membre du Conseil de fondation qui a joué un rôle très apprécié dans les développements des dernières années.

ALUMNI AWARDS

Afin d'honorer les réalisations exceptionnelles des alumni, le comité de l'Association des anciens de l'Institut a créé les « alumni awards », qui sont remis lors du dîner de gala de la Réunion annuelle des anciens étudiants. Le 2 novembre 2019, les prix suivants ont été décernés :

Alumna of the Year

Recognises the outstanding achievement of an alumna/alumnus in her/his field within the last year. Consideration is given to alumnae/alumni who have won honours in their field or who have been recognised nationally or internationally.

JULIE MELICHAR

Julie Melichar is the Citizen Mobilisation and Communication Officer at SOS Méditerranée, a humanitarian association that rescues distressed people in the Mediterranean Sea. As a student, Ms Melichar co-launched the Migration Initiative to give French courses to asylum seekers. She also worked at the International Committee of the Red Cross as an Associate on Migration, and for the UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs in Beirut, Lebanon, and in Greece as a humanitarian worker for Lighthouse Relief. She earned her Master in International Affairs from the Graduate Institute in 2017, with a specialisation in conflict and peacebuilding. As an activist, Julie Melichar embodies civil society, which refuses to give up, and one of the Institute's core values: solidarity.

Young Alumna

Recognises the outstanding achievement of a young alumna/alumnus in her/his field, whether through professional achievement or community service. The recipient must be 40 years or under at the time of nomination.

SANDRINE CINA

Sandrine Cina is a startup founder, a MassChallenge Finalist and a World Economic Forum Global Shaper. In 2010, she launched Be You Network, an organisation dedicated to helping people create a world where gender norms no longer define "who we can be, who we can love and what we can achieve". Since its creation, 150,000 people have taken action in 50+ cities around the world. In 2019, Ms Cina created a new venture, BØWIE, which is the first incubator dedicated to impactful projects in the gender field. She has also participated as a speaker at Davos and TEDx and earned her Master in International Affairs in 2011, after serving as a consultant to the United Nations Population Fund.

To honour the outstanding achievements of Institute's alumni, the Alumni Association Committee created the Alumni Awards, which are given during the Alumni Reunion gala dinner. On 2 November 2019, the following awards were given:

Commitment to the Institute and Alumni Association

Recognises the extraordinary contributions to the advancement of the Institute and Alumni Association by an alumna/alumnus through her/his volunteerism, dedication, philanthropy and commitment to its values.

JENÖ STAEHELIN

Ambassador Jenö Staehelin is a Swiss career diplomat and lawyer. He orchestrated the referendum by which the people and cantons of Switzerland approved the country's membership to the United Nations. He subsequently served as the first Swiss Permanent Representative to the United Nations in New York.

The Advancing Development Goals contest (also known as the Geneva Challenge, see p. 44), hosted by the Graduate Institute since 2014, owes its initiative and patronage to the generous vision of Ambassador Staehelin, who believes in the participation of talented young minds in framing and implementing an international development agenda.

Lifetime Professional Achievement

Recognises an alumna/alumnus who has demonstrated excellence and achievement in her/his distinguished career; has demonstrated leadership in her/his profession; has made a positive contribution to the prestige, influence and reputation of the Institute; and exercises a strong positive influence within the community.

MARCEL A. BOISARD

Marcel A. Boisard is a Swiss intellectual and diplomat. He completed his studies in Germany, the United States and obtained his PhD from the Graduate Institute in 1977. At different times of his career and at different levels of responsibilities, M. Boisard served as a field delegate for the International Committee of the Red Cross during armed conflicts in Algeria, Yemen, the Arab Republic of Egypt, Israel, Syria, Jordan and Saudi Arabia. In 1980, he joined the United Nations and, in 1992, was appointed Executive Director of the United Nations Institute for Training and Research. In 2001, M. Boisard became Assistant Secretary-General of the United Nations.

ALUMNI ARE MOBILISING AND FUNDING SCHOLARSHIPS

Alumni Community Scholarship

Currently pursuing a Master in International Affairs, HENRY ANYOMI comes from Ghana. His undergraduate programme was a combined major in political science and French from the University of Ghana, Legon. After school, he worked with the University of Ghana Careers and Counselling Centre for a year, executing tasks like sponsorship prospecting, report writing and events organising, to mention a few. He is looking forward to researching interreligious cooperation and international peace promotion more in depth and expects to be able to help forge strong relationships across religions, while mitigating the effects of hatred and extremism.

- The Alumni Community Scholarship was established to fund the academic and living expenses of a student in financial need for a year. Funds for the scholarship are collected through direct donations to the Alumni Community Scholarship and also during a raffle and silent auction held at the annual Alumni Reunion, which reunites alumni from around the world.

Washington, D.C. Alumni Chapter Scholarship

KENNEDY MMASI was born and raised in Arusha, Tanzania. He moved to the United States to pursue a Bachelor in Economics at Harvard University. There, he led the Youth Alliance for Leadership and Development, creating a forum for youth in Africa to share ideas on innovative solutions for development challenges in their communities. After university, he spent three years working in various sectors, including consulting, technology and a non-profit organisation in New York and Boston. He is currently working towards a Master in International Affairs with a focus on finance and trade. After he graduates, he hopes to work in the field of international trade, building economic policies that can enable developing countries to maximise gains from trade.

- The Washington, D.C. Alumni Chapter Scholarship was created to promote awareness of the Graduate Institute in the United States, while also helping the Institute recruit graduate students of high calibre. The Scholarship is available for first-year masters or doctoral students, irrespective of nationality, who wish to study at the Institute from an American university. It is awarded based on academic achievement and then economic need, and funds nine months of study. The Graduate Institute's Washington, D.C. Alumni Chapter has been awarding this scholarship since 2010.

SOME AWARDS RECEIVED BY OUR FACULTY

Anna Leander, Elisabeth Prügl and Liliana Andonova Win Prestigious Prizes from the International Studies Association

Professors Anna Leander, Elisabeth Prügl and Liliana Andonova from the International Relations/Political Science Department were awarded prizes for their work at the International Studies Association (ISA) in Toronto, Canada on 27 March 2019.

For her book Governance Entrepreneurs: International Organizations and the Rise of Global Public-Private Partnerships, Liliana Andonova received two prizes: the Margaret & Harold Sprout Award of the Environmental Studies Section, as well as the Chadwick Alger Prize of the International Organization section. Anna Leander was awarded the Distinguished Scholar Award of the section on Science, Technology and Art in International Relations and Elisabeth Prügl was presented the Eminent Scholar Award of the Feminist Theory and Gender Studies Section.

- ISA is a world-renowned academic association that endeavours to create communities of scholars dedicated to international studies. With 6,500 members globally, its goal is to provide opportunities for an exchange of ideas and research between colleagues on a local level and within specific subject areas.

Susanna Hecht Awarded the David Livingstone Centenary Medal

Susanna Hecht, professor of Anthropology and Sociology, received the David Livingstone Centenary Medal. Professor Hecht is widely recognised as a preeminent authority on forest transitions and sustainable agriculture, and her work represents a remarkable integration of the humanities, including the history of ideas, social and environmental history and the social sciences of development, into the dynamics and sciences of tropical and planetary change. As one of the founding thinkers of the field of political ecology, she has consistently carved out new analytic terrain through highly active tropical and archival research, focusing largely on land-use change in the Latin American tropics.

- The David Livingstone Centenary Medal was named after the great traveller David Livingstone and bestowed “for scientific achievement in the field of geography in the southern hemisphere”. The American Geographical Society – the oldest professional geographical organisation in the United States and viewed worldwide as a pioneer in geographical research and education – established the award in 1913 to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the birth of its namesake.

Nico Krisch Awarded the Max Planck-Cambridge Prize for International Law

Professor Krisch, who teaches International Law at the Graduate Institute and is Co-director of the Global Governance Centre, received the inaugural Max Planck-Cambridge Prize for International Law. This prize honours him for his work on postnational law and beyond, in which he not only identifies and theorises problems but also develops potential solutions.

- Established in 2019, the prize is given jointly by the Max Planck Institute for Comparative Public Law and International Law of Heidelberg and the Lauterpacht Centre for International Law at the University of Cambridge. It was created as a way to nurture young scholars who are likely to engage in “substantial, innovative and cutting-edge research” in the field of international law.

L'INSTITUT SOUTIENT SES ÉTUDIANTS

L'Institut veut attirer des jeunes gens talentueux du monde entier indépendamment de leurs origines sociales ou de leur situation personnelle. Au cours des dernières années, il a développé des efforts considérables pour apporter une aide aux étudiants qui ont des besoins avérés par des bourses complètes ou partielles ou par des exonérations d'écologie. Le montant de cette aide a passé de 3,5 millions de francs en 2014 à 5,9 millions de francs en 2019. L'argent provient du revenu net de la Maison des étudiants Edgar et Danièle de Picciotto qui est entièrement utilisé à cette fin, de dons de mécènes (fondations et amis de l'Institut) et d'une contribution substantielle de l'Institut. Actuellement, 60 % des étudiants qui demandent une aide financière reçoivent un soutien.

Au total, près de 45 % de tous les étudiants bénéficient d'un appui de la part de l'Institut, soit sous la forme d'une bourse ou d'une d'exonération d'écologie, soit sous la forme d'un emploi d'assistant d'enseignement (environ 70 étudiants de doctorat), d'assistant de recherche (plus de 50 étudiants de doctorat) ou d'auxiliaire dans certains services comme la bibliothèque.

L'Institut soutient également ses étudiants en leur offrant un accès gratuit aux prestations sportives, culturelles et médicosychologiques de l'Université de Genève. Enfin, avec l'aide de l'Association des étudiants (GISA), il encourage et soutient des initiatives étudiantes visant à développer des compétences professionnelles.

Graduate Institute Refugee Scholarship

Originally from South Sudan, MAIWEN DOT PHEOT NGALUETH came to Switzerland with his family as the political environment in his home country made living a normal life impossible. Having already spent nearly a decade working in the humanitarian sector, Maiwen is now undertaking his Master in International Affairs.

“ I would like to tell refugees like me ... to have hope and to remember that despite all the challenges that we all go through, there are a lot of people out there who are ready to support them in achieving their goals. I would like to thank the Graduate Institute for the warm welcome at the school and for offering me the opportunity as a refugee to come and study here. ”

■ The Refugee Scholarship is funded by the Institute and was created in partnership with the Graduate Institute Student Association's Migration Initiative out of a deep concern for the magnitude of the migratory crisis and the fate of tens of thousands of people in war zones seeking refuge in countries like Switzerland.

Graduate Institute Community Scholarship

SHRIYA PATNAIK is from the state of Odisha in India. She received her Bachelor in History and South Asia Studies from Cornell University and a Dual Master in International History from Columbia University and the London School of Economics. She is currently a PhD candidate in International History.

“ I feel privileged, humbled, grateful and hugely validated to have received the Community Scholarship. Without it, I would not have been able to undertake my PhD in Europe and benefit from the rich culture of research at the Graduate Institute. Furthermore, this scholarship shows just how seriously the Institute takes genuine social research, and the contribution it makes towards global issues. ”

■ Since 2013, the Graduate Institute community – the Foundation Board, administrative personnel and faculty, as well as retired professors – has mobilised to raise funds that provide a full scholarship for a student from the Global South. These funds are awarded annually as a show of solidarity with the Institute and with those students who would not be able to study in Geneva without financial aid.

Lore Vandewalle, Associate Professor of International Economics and Pictet Chair for Finance and Development, gives the Ardit Prize to Aatif Somji.

Vinh-Kim Nguyen and Suerie Moon Succeed Founder Ilona Kickbusch as Co-directors of the Global Health Centre

After a decade as Director of the Global Health Centre (GHC), Ilona Kickbusch, Adjunct Professor of Interdisciplinary Programmes, is stepping down. She will remain affiliated to the Centre as its chairperson.

Professor Kickbusch created the GHC – the Graduate Institute’s centre of excellence on global health research, training and capacity building – at a time when the interface of health and foreign policy was not yet high on the political agenda. Through her leadership and vision, the Centre was able to undertake innovative social science research on global health governance, shape policy debates at national, regional and global levels, as well as establish a Certificate of Advanced Studies in Global Health Diplomacy, training a generation of global health negotiators.

Professor Kickbusch’s approach always centred on health as a political choice and as a governance challenge, therefore going beyond a siloed disease approach:

“ We need the political capacity to, among others, collectively ensure global health security, tackle comprehensively non-communicable diseases, guarantee access to medicines, build universal health coverage, reduce global health inequalities, and better understand the opportunities and challenges of digital transformation in health. This is a vast agenda but first and foremost a political agenda that requires the support of all actors. The GHC has always played a crucial role in pushing boundaries and exploring new avenues and I wish my successors well in the endeavour. ”

Vinh-Kim Nguyen is professor of Anthropology and Sociology and an HIV specialist, emergency physician and medical anthropologist. He was recently elected to the board of MSF Switzerland where he serves as Vice-President. As both practitioner and researcher, he is concerned with the relationship between science, politics and practice in global health.

Dr Suerie Moon, former Director of Research at the GHC, is a scholar of global governance with specialised policy expertise on innovation and access to medicines; outbreak preparedness and response; trade, investment and intellectual property rules; and development assistance for health.

The Geneva Centre for Education and Research in Humanitarian Action (CERAH) Appoints Professor Karl Blanchet as Its New Director

In his new role taken up in December 2019, Professor Karl Blanchet aims to provide vision and guidance to strengthen CERAH's role as a global centre for academic excellence rooted in humanitarian practice, offering high quality education and training, and serving as a global policy hub for the humanitarian sector thanks to a reinvigorated, applied research portfolio based on relief agencies' priorities.

"It is already a highly respected institution, but we will take this to new levels, ensuring our courses and research projects are dynamic and relevant to our students and partners", said Professor Blanchet. "Never has it been more important to strengthen and improve humanitarian action, in a world where it is often threatened."

Professor Blanchet has been working in health systems research at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine since 2010 and was appointed as co-director of the Health in Humanitarian Crises Centre in 2016. He has a management and public health background and brings his extensive experience in humanitarian contexts as a relief worker and a researcher to CERAH.

■ The CERAH, a joint centre of the Graduate Institute and the University of Geneva, is a unique teaching, research and policy platform for humanitarian action. In June 2020 it became the Geneva Centre of Humanitarian Studies with a new website.

The Small Arms Survey Welcomes New Director Daniel de Torres

Daniel de Torres joined the Survey with a broad portfolio of experience in the humanitarian, security, development and gender equality fields. From 2008 to 2019, he served as deputy head, then later, head, of the Geneva Centre for Security Sector Governance's (DCAF) Gender and Security Division. Prior to that, he worked for the Embassy of Spain in Washington, D.C., served in the Spanish Marines, and led emergency relief work for an NGO in Bosnia and Herzegovina in the 1990s.

"It's an honour to take the helm of such a well-renowned institution as the Small Arms Survey. I've long admired the Survey's work, and share its vision of a world without illicit arms and armed violence. I am very excited to join forces with these great professionals to further strengthen the Survey's position within this field", said Daniel de Torres.

■ The Small Arms Survey, an associated programme of the Graduate Institute and the University of Geneva, was founded in 1999 and has established itself as a leader in small arms and armed violence expertise under the management of previous directors, Professor Keith Krause and Eric Berman. The Survey is a global centre of excellence producing research and evidence-based policy recommendations for practitioners and decision-makers alike, and information for the wider public.

La recherche à l'Institut Research at the Institute

La recherche est effectuée par des professeurs soit à titre individuel, soit dans le cadre de centres interdisciplinaires. Ces centres forment un milieu intellectuel stimulant, en favorisant l'échange entre professeurs et doctorants et en renforçant des réseaux d'expertise spécialisés dans les thématiques où Genève et la Suisse ont un avantage comparé. Ils offrent une interface unique entre le monde académique et la communauté internationale grâce à leur palette d'activités qui vont de la recherche et de l'expertise à l'organisation de débats, en passant par l'accueil de chercheurs du monde entier et la contribution aux programmes de formation continue de l'Institut.

Research is conducted by professors either on an individual basis or in conjunction with interdisciplinary centres. These centres provide a stimulating intellectual environment by promoting exchanges between professors and doctoral students and by strengthening expertise networks in subjects where Geneva and Switzerland have a comparative advantage. They provide a unique interface between the academic world and the international community thanks to their wide range of activities, including research and expertise, organising public debates, hosting researchers from around the world, and contributing to the Institute's executive education courses.

The Impact of Financialisation on Global Health: A Series of Pharmaceutical Case Studies

In recent decades the structure of national and global economies has undergone a significant shift, characterised as financialisation, whereby economic, social and political life is being increasingly shaped by financial actors and motives. The objective of this research is to examine the impact of financialisation on the development and use of pharmaceuticals in three areas of global health significance: (1) the "recycling" of antiretroviral drugs for HIV prevention; (2) the search for effective treatments and vaccine for Ebola virus disease; and (3) the development of solutions for the growing global threat of antimicrobial resistance. This research requires an interdisciplinary approach that brings together expertise in interactions between the worlds of finance and pharmaceuticals with insight into how global health problems and solutions play out. There has, to date, been relatively little research exploring these intersections. For each of these areas, the project will assemble in-depth case studies of pharmaceutical solutions, linking research on "upstream" financial factors affecting their development with clinical, epidemiological, and social realities "downstream".

Patchwork Cities: Urban Ethnic Clusters in the Global South During the Age of Steam

This project investigates the historical reasons for, and the meaning of, ethnic residence patterns in port cities of the Global South, 1850–1930. Technological change, imperial expansion, and the spread of capitalism during this period fuelled both the world's increasing interconnectedness and the rapid growth of port cities. The rise of the steam engine in shipping accelerated trade and migration from the 1870s, engraving global inequalities into the urban space of multi-ethnic commodity entrepôts of the Global South. Contrary to an older literature equating globalisation with the erosion of difference, the project asks how the era's intensifying cross-continental networks related to dissimilarities in urban space, thereby considering cities as encapsulations of the knot-like nature of long-distance connections. Drawing on social science methods developed to study segregation in North American cities, the project redirects scholarly attention to port cities of the Global South as bridgeheads of uneven globalisation and laboratories for the negotiation of ethnicity. With its empirical and historical emphasis on ethnic clustering in such cities, the project adds historical depth to discussions concerning the relationship between globalisation and a particular form of inequality.

How Elites Shape Unequal Democracies: Perceptions of Redistribution in Brazil and South Africa

The role of elites in the reproduction of inequalities has received increasing attention in recent years. Nevertheless, the vast majority of these studies explicitly or implicitly assume that it is always in the interest of elites to increase inequality and oppose redistribution. Far less attention has been given to the conditions under which elites are likely to support and promote redistributive agendas. This project will shift the focus from how elites benefit from inequality to how elites may support redistribution. We focus on elite perceptions as mechanisms that may enable or constrain support for redistributive policies. The project will collect and analyse data in two of the most unequal democracies in the world, Brazil and South Africa, where redistribution has been a key issue of political debate. The research will rely on a multimethod design, combining (1) estimation of the average effects of perception on elite support for redistribution through surveys and (2) identification of the cultural processes that enable this support through in-depth interviews. By highlighting the cultural processes that mediate the relationship between material (i.e., economic) incentives and policy outputs, this study will contribute to understanding why, in spite of relative consensus that inequality is one of the most pressing social issues today, political mobilisation among elites in response to it has been underwhelming.

Why Do Immigrants Oppose Immigration? Comparing Economic, Cultural, and Contextual Explanations

Why do resident immigrants oppose further immigration to their host country? A number of recent studies have found that immigrants do not necessarily prefer more immigration but disagree on why that is the case. Some studies argue that opposition to immigration is a result of resident immigrants' cultural and political integration, i.e., the degree to which they have assimilated to natives' immigration preferences. In contrast, others posit that opposition is driven rather by concerns about the impact of immigration on the economy and economic self-interest. To compare the relative explanatory power of different hypotheses, this study combines observational and experimental evidence by surveying resident immigrants in Switzerland. Specifically, the study employs a survey experiment in which the respondents are asked to evaluate different profiles of hypothetical prospective immigrants that vary in their economic and cultural characteristics. Bridging the fields of political psychology and political economy, this study's findings will reveal whether natives and resident immigrants are affected by immigration in the same ways or diverge in crucial aspects. Moreover, the findings also hold political implications for immigrants' ability to advocate for themselves, their voting behaviour, and the governance of diverse societies.

The Transnational Politics of Ethics Review: A Study of the Effects of Ethical Regulations on Political Voice in Global South Countries

Over the past two decades, research ethics regulations have spread globally. These regulations – designed to ensure the ethical conduct of biomedical research in the United States – now apply broadly to any research conducted with human subjects across the world. This regulation is intended to protect the welfare and autonomy of research subjects; however, it has also been broadly recognised as a poor fit for the social sciences, which often grapple with questions of power and inequality. This project examines how the emerging ethics regulatory system impacts social sciences research that is conducted transnationally and on politically sensitive topics. The project traces the global diffusion of ethics regulations and their application to the social sciences, with a particular focus on international conflict research – the study of the causes and consequences of armed conflict. It then examines how ethics regulations have shaped conflict research in recent years, with a particular focus on how these regulations, paradoxically, can restrict politically sensitive research.

Governing Plastic: The Global Political Economy and Regulation of Plastic Production and Pollution

Numerous calls for international action have been stirred by the scale and impacts of plastic pollution on the world's oceans and marine ecosystems. Growing scientific evidence of both the environmental and health challenges presented by microplastics has widened the scope of policy discussion to "plastic pollution". Hence, there is an increasing consideration of the social, health, and fiscal impacts of plastic pollution on land, including in developing countries struggling to manage a rising tide of plastic waste. Yet there is little attention among scholars or policy analysts to the strong economic and political forces that drive the expanding global plastics economy. This multidisciplinary project aims to explain, first, the politics of the global political economy of growing plastic pollution. Second, it seeks to find out what economic instruments, international policy tools, and legal frameworks could impact the reduction of both plastic production and pollution, and the transformation of the global plastics economy.

NEW PROGRAMME LAUNCH ON LEADERSHIP

Under the prevailing situation of rapid change and increasingly complex challenges, transformation is high on the agenda of both private and public organisations. At Executive Education, we believe that such transformation is achieved through action by individuals with a culture of collaboration, a taste of experimentation and the humbling conviction that we live in a world of unknown unknowns. Whereas this belief underlies all of our degree-granting programmes, we developed and launched in 2019 an intensive, short programme on leadership exclusively focused on adaptive and transformative dimensions for individuals from all horizons. It is a required part of our flagship Master of Advanced Studies in International Strategy and Leadership but open to participants who are only interested in a short, intensive experience with us.

The programme targets individuals who want to embark upon a journey of system transformation. Aimed both at broadening horizons and enhancing skills, this programme helps participants become mindful decision-makers acting with a deep sense of purpose. The programme follows a three-step process. The first step focuses on what we call seeing and sensing.

Participants learn to explore current trends and signals of potential change. They practice their ability to see reality from different viewpoints and to identify critical junctures. The second step pushes participants to move from the observation of the world to their inner individual conditions. This requires reflecting upon one's inner self, identifying one's blind spots and learning to connect to others not only with their mind but also with their heart and guts. The last step builds upon broadening the mind and deepening the source of action to practice the design of organisational change in specific professional contexts.

The programme provides participants with various skills such as foresight, systems thinking and design thinking, but also helps them venture into meditation and techniques for leading from within. Equipped with those skills and techniques, individuals will better anticipate profound societal change and be better grounded and prepared to seize opportunities for change that lie ahead. There is no doubt that the current turn of events makes this new programme more timely than ever.

FACILITATION FOR INNOVATION

Disruptive technologies, rising inequalities and growing environmental threats pose complex challenges to our societies, calling for the need to develop organisational cultures which can cope with these new circumstances. In that vein, Executive Education has been active in facilitating the creation of two new Geneva-based platforms of exchange (one on international trade and one on societal transformations) on behalf of the Swiss diplomatic missions to the World Trade Organization and to the United Nations, respectively. It has also used design thinking as a core tool in those processes. By putting an emphasis on human needs, design thinking supports insight discovery relevant to the organisation – in this context, a platform – and fosters co-creation among stakeholders.

Uncovering human needs is therefore a key step. For the platform on international trade, Executive Education facilitators organised ethnographic interviews with a broad variety of stakeholders in the domain. A series of quotes, sometimes quite surprising, were isolated from these interviews to serve as a basis for the workshop. Through an innovative brainstorming technique, those quotes were transformed into points of views and insights, i.e., expressions of insightful needs that could be fulfilled through the launch of a platform on international trade. The facilitators then launched an ideation phase, which led to the development of several business model canvas for the platform. In the end, the initiators benefited from several models for a platform on international trade, including potential activities, financing modes, as well as potential synergies with other existing initiatives.

A similar methodology was applied to the discussions around the creation of a platform on work transformations. Here the results of the facilitation were also very interesting. The complex nature of today's transformations and their interlinkages were emphasised during the discussions, to the extent that the scope of the platform was redesigned. A platform on transformations will be launched in Geneva, with several streams of work (work transformations being the first one), including innovative mechanisms to explore the nexus among different transformation streams.

In sum, these facilitation processes led by Executive Education show that organisational models can move from a culture focusing on solving problems to a culture focusing on identifying opportunities and solutions to improve the future. It is this proactive stance in the current uncertain and rapidly changing context that Executive Education wishes to promote through its "facilitation for innovation" activities.

Europe and Brexit: Gordon Brown (L), Elisabeth Prügl and José Manuel Barroso.

A Selection of Conferences

EUROPE AND BREXIT | 28 NOVEMBER 2019

The Graduate Institute hosted GORDON BROWN, former Prime Minister of the United Kingdom and current United Nations Special Envoy for Global Education, and JOSÉ MANUEL BARROSO, former President of the European Commission and Prime Minister of Portugal, for a discussion on the impact of Brexit on the European Union (EU).

In discussing why Britain voted to leave the EU, Gordon Brown stated, “The Brexit vote was an antiglobalisation vote.” He underlined how politics is about persuasion and that the “case for Europe was not properly put”. Another key element that influenced Brexit results was nationalism, specifically cultural insecurity, which according to Gordon Brown will continue to be a rising phenomenon and a significant factor to come.

Regarding the impacts of Brexit, José Manuel Barroso stated that this is a major issue for the EU as it is losing one of the most important countries in the world. He declared, “Brexit has been more of a vaccination than a contagion”, as he highlighted how Brexit is now a driver for unity in Europe.

The discussion was organised in partnership with Avenir Suisse and Foraus, and moderated by ELISABETH PRÜGL, Professor of International Relations/Political Science at the Institute.

THE FUTURE OF FOOD SECURITY | 12 NOVEMBER 2019

The Graduate Institute and the Oxford Martin School at the University of Oxford, with the support of the Institute’s Centre for International Environmental Studies (CIES) and the MAVA Foundation, organised a panel discussion on the current global challenge of food security. Our century brings many problems regarding population, food requirements and land use. By the year 2100, the global population is expected to increase to about 11 billion. This means that agriculture will need to supply 50% more food and threatens to use more land in order to do so.

“In the 21st century, with the onset of multiple global problems such as climate change, meeting food requirements from reduced land allocations proves crucial”, said TIM SWANSON, Professor of International Economics and Academic Co-director of CIES. Addressing the challenge of food security will necessarily imply changing how we produce and consume the world’s resources. In this sense, SIR CHARLES GODFRAY, Professor of Population Biology and Director of the Oxford Martin School, emphasised the need to reduce food waste and to foster technological innovation in agriculture.

The Geneva Challenge 2019: Jenö Staehelin, founder and patron of the contest, with Martina Viarengo (L), Chair of the Academic Steering Committee, Dr Zsuzsanna Jakab (R), Deputy Director-General of the World Health Organization, and the laureates.

THE GENEVA CHALLENGE | 1 OCTOBER 2019

The 2019 Geneva Challenge is an international competition for graduate students aimed to present innovative and pragmatic solutions to address challenges facing global health. Out of 100 submissions received from around the world, the winning team was from the Weizmann Institute of Science with their project Re Medic. “The typical medicine cabinet in countries enjoying good healthcare systems is full of unused, valid medications. For me, it is truly devastating to know that this excess exists when thousands of people who cannot otherwise afford medications could benefit from them”, said team spokesperson FADI SHEBAN. “I see Re Medic as the first holistic reuse approach to this problem, tackling different aspects of medication excess.”

THE INTERNATIONAL FORUM ON DIPLOMATIC TRAINING | 18–21 SEPTEMBER 2019

The 46th Meeting of Deans and Directors of Diplomatic Academies and Institutes of International Relations was jointly organised by the Graduate Institute, the DiploFoundation, the Geneva Centre for Security Policy and the United Nations Institute for Training and Research in Geneva. “Diplomacy 4.0” was the central theme of the conference with a focus on linking discussions on the future of diplomacy with the wealth of expertise and experience in international affairs and multilateral diplomacy to be found in organisations and initiatives located in Geneva.

DIGITAL COOPERATION: CAN GENEVA MAKE IT A WIN-WIN? | 2 SEPTEMBER 2019

In June 2019 the High-level Panel on Digital Cooperation laid out a series of recommendations to ensure that the benefits delivered by digital technologies to our societies and to each individual outweigh the challenges those technologies raise. The Graduate Institute and the Club diplomatique de Genève organised an event with BRAD SMITH, President of Microsoft and alumnus of the Institute, to discuss some key aspects of the report, as well as the role that Geneva and its surrounding region can play in building an inclusive and trustworthy digital world.

We need to find a new approach to sharing data while protecting privacy”, underlined Mr Smith. “... The most pressing challenge is missing out on the tremendous opportunity that digital technologies offer.”

Brad Smith was joined by DORIS LEUTHARD, former President of the Swiss Confederation, and AMANDEEP SINGH GILL, former Co-executive Director of the Secretariat of the High-level Panel on Digital Cooperation, who shared their respective insights on these issues. The panel was moderated by MYRET ZAKI, Swiss Economic Journalist, and was concluded by JOVAN KURBALIJA, Head of the Geneva Internet Platform.

CLIMATE: RECLAIMING OUR COMMON FUTURE | 3 JULY 2019

ANGEL GURRÍA, Secretary-General of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), held his fourth biennial climate change lecture, “Climate: Reclaiming Our Common Future”, at the Graduate Institute. “We have repeatedly called upon governments to honour their climate commitments”, said Mr Gurría in his keynote address. “... And despite strong progress on renewables, fossil fuels continue to dominate our energy mix. The fact that we now have the technologies to avoid a lot of emissions, and that their cost is falling like a stone, makes inaction today doubly unacceptable.”

The lecture was organised in partnership with the OECD and was moderated by BEATRICE WEDER DI MAURO, Professor of International Economics at the Institute.

THE FUTURE OF WORK | 11 APRIL AND 27 NOVEMBER 2019

The world of labour is at a critical juncture as new technological opportunities are profoundly transforming the way we work. On the occasion of the International Labour Organization (ILO) Centenary Celebration, the Graduate Institute organised two public events bringing together key figures from public, private and academic spheres to debate how to shape a future that works and to identify what needs to be done to build an adaptable future for all. On 11 April 2019, the Graduate Institute, the ILO and the Financial Times organised a panel discussion entitled “How to Shape a Future that Works: Transforming the Global Response to the Future of Work”. The discussion continued on 27 November 2019 with the organisation of “The Future of Work Summit” at the Graduate Institute in partnership with the Permanent Mission of Finland, the Permanent Mission of Switzerland, the Permanent Mission of Ireland and the EU Delegation to the UN in Geneva.

These events were expected to reflect on the urgent need to rethink collaboration and tools for a more inclusive, productive and sustainable future of work. ILO Director-General GUY RYDER stated that he believes this Centenary can help stimulate the right sorts of actions to move the world on the trajectory for the future of work, which is “not imposed upon us ... but is what we are willing and able to create”.

MORE RESPONSIBLE JOURNALISM FOR TOMORROW | 18 JANUARY 2019

What does responsible journalism mean in today’s fast-paced news world? The second Global Constructive Journalism Conference was jointly organised by the Constructive Institute and the Graduate Institute. In her opening remarks, JACQUELINE COTÉ, Director of Public Relations at the Institute, noted that the two Institutes were natural partners, first because of their shared mission to advance insight and debate in the social sciences and humanities, and second because “academia work hand-in-hand with the media”.

Speakers came from global media outlets, tech companies, non-profits and academia, and shared their stories, ideas and impactful insights on the future state of journalism. Through panel debates, first-hand experiences and storytelling, more than 300 participants from 56 countries heard how the news industry filters the world and how journalism could be made more trusted and relevant. The conference also facilitated a debate about how journalism can improve without violating its inherent principle of independence and its critical nature.

Une stratégie de partenariats publics-privés A Public-Private Partnership Strategy

L'Institut est une fondation de droit privé dotée d'une gouvernance forte qui poursuit l'objectif prioritaire de l'excellence universitaire en prenant appui sur deux types de moyens : d'une part, un soutien public sous la forme de subventions de la Confédération helvétique et du canton de Genève qui lui donnent la base indispensable à l'accomplissement de sa mission et, d'autre part, des financements du secteur non étatique sous la forme de dons qui lui permettent de se développer.

L'Institut recherche l'efficacité dans la mise en œuvre des deux types de moyens. Dans la réalisation du mandat qui lui est confié par les autorités politiques, il fait levier sur les moyens publics pour obtenir, notamment en recrutant des professeurs de haut niveau, autant de fonds de tiers que possible, notamment sous la forme de contrats de recherche et de revenus de la formation continue. Il recherche simultanément des ressources additionnelles auprès de fondations et de mécènes pour financer des bourses et des chaires, mais aussi pour construire des logements d'étudiants qui rehaussent son attractivité auprès d'étudiants venant du monde entier tout en lui apportant des revenus supplémentaires.

The Institute, a private law foundation with a solid governance structure, pursues its goal of academic excellence through two means: public support in the form of subsidies from the Swiss Confederation and the Canton of Geneva provide an essential base for achieving its mission, while funding from the non-state sector in the form of donations allows the Institute to grow.

The Institute seeks to implement efficiently both of these means. In carrying out the mandate entrusted to it by political authorities, it leverages public resources to obtain (notably through recruiting high-level professors) as much third-party funding as possible, mainly via research grants and executive education income. Simultaneously, it seeks additional funding for scholarships and academic chairs from foundations and patrons, as well as funding for building student housing, which enhances the Institute's appeal to students from around the world while generating additional income.

In 2019 1 CHF of public subsidies helped leverage over 1 CHF of third-party funds
