

Jacques Moreillon | Class of 1971

After six visits to Nelson Mandela, the prisoner, Jacques Moreillon kept close contact with the “free” great man. Here we see them reunited in 2003 at the British Red Cross “Humanity Award” ceremony where Jacques Moreillon presented the award to Mandela. Member of the ICRC Directorate from 1975 to 1988, he was successively Director of the Department of Doctrine and Law (as successor to Jean Pictet), then Director of General Affairs and finally Director General of the ICRC ad personam from 1984.

© ICRC Archives.

Jacques Moreillon was ICRC delegate in Vietnam in 1966. His thesis on “The International Committee of the Red Cross and political detainees” led him to become an ICRC delegate, first in India (1965), then in Vietnam (1966).

© Jacques Moreillon.

Jacques Moreillon in Petra, Jordan after completing his mission as ICRC delegate in Syria in 1969. He was head of delegation in Syria (1967), and Israel (1969–70) with, in between, missions to Nigeria/Biafra and to the Vatican.

© ICRC Archives.

Jacques Moreillon, ICRC Director, and Alexandre Hay, ICRC President, welcomed by US President Ronald Reagan in 1985 at the White House in Washington, D.C.

